The distribution of assets may be off target due to changes in market conditions.

The performance of the fund in May 2023

During May the unit value increased by 0.33% compared to the previous month.

Bond market started the month on a positive note, but yields edged higher due to fears of a prospect of default for the US Government. However, the last days of the month were filled with renewed optimism since the deal for debt ceiling increase came to a close. This caused a positive reevaluating of the investment portfolio of Euro fund, which posted small gains throughout May. The net annual return improved at -0.53% on May 31, 2023.

On 31 May, 2023	1 Year	3 Year	5 Year	7 Year	10 Year	Since Inception (Nov. 22, 2012)
Return in % p.a. for the period	-0.53%	-1.54%	-1.42%	-0.55%	0.54%	0.70%

Net return for each year for Euro fund

It should be noted that the rate of return varies depending on market conditions and the unit value may be volatile, so it is not static or always increasing, but may also fall because of changes in market conditions. Volatility is a natural part of investment funds, and its total elimination is impossible.

The investors of Raiffeisen Invest Euro fund and all funds managed by Raiffeisen Invest are advised to have the longest possible investment horizon to benefit from an optimal return on investment and thus in the medium or long term to be able to recover the negative effects, which are created in short-term.

We do encourage investors to maintain their investment by not changing their investment objective of staying in fund driven by the unusual situation created by market developments caused by the geopolitical risks and high inflation, because in this way they will not risk getting out of the fund at the wrong time for their investment.

Developments and information on the performance of financial markets during May

As energy prices stopped rising in year-on-year terms, the inflationary pressure subsided significantly. The inflation in the euro zone eased more than expected in May with the annual headline inflation rate falling to 6.1% from 7% in April, the lowest level since February 2022. Core inflation, excluding energy and food, also dropped more than expected, to 5.3% from 5.6%. Furthermore, the annual inflation rate in the US fell to 4.9% in April 2023, the lowest since April 2021, and below market forecasts of 5%. Shelter costs, which account for over 30% of the total CPI basket, slowed for the first time in two years.

The ECB's decision to raise its deposit rate by 25bp to 3.25% was in line with market expectations. Meanwhile, President Lagarde used a hawkish rhetoric, repeating the statement that the Bank is not pausing. This combined with persistent inflationary pressures remaining strong, suggests that a couple more rate hikes are likely.

The increase in the FED funds target range by 25 bp to 5.00%-5.25% leaves it in line with the end-year peak implied by the Fed's March projections. Comments from Chair Jerome Powell opened the door for a pause in June but played down the prospect of rate cuts later in the year — a scenario firmly reflected in market pricing.

Markets remained tense as uncertainty grew around the potential fallout from a temporary default on US Treasuries starting June 5. Talks whipsawed between progress and deadlock for days as time was running out to reach a deal to increase debt-ceiling. The deal was finalized just before the deadline, suspending the debt ceiling until Jan. 1, 2025, while capping federal spending.

Bonds were volatile during the month with ups and downs and spreads widened. The last day of the month was far more optimistic since apparently a deal was reached. Treasury and German bonds rallied, with two- and five-year yields falling as much as 10 basis points, while FED pause bets increased.

On another note, the euro has been losing ground to other major currencies amid signals that inflation may be falling more quickly than expected.
