Investment Portfolio Structure as of 28 February 2025

The Euro fund portfolio is constructed in such a way as to benefit from balancing the various categories of investment in government and corporate bonds. This is done to diversify the portfolio and reduce the risk of widespread exposure to a few instruments. The percentage of asset allocation is made in accordance with the investment policy and the criteria specified in the fund prospectus. The distribution of assets may be off target due to changes in market conditions.

The Fund's assets are invested in financial instruments belonging to issuers that perform in various industries of the economy, enabling the portfolio diversification to increase.

Referring to the structure of the fund's investment portfolio on 28 February 2025, the percentage of fund assets invested in government bonds stands at 56.7% of assets and 39.4% belong to the Albanian Government bonds.

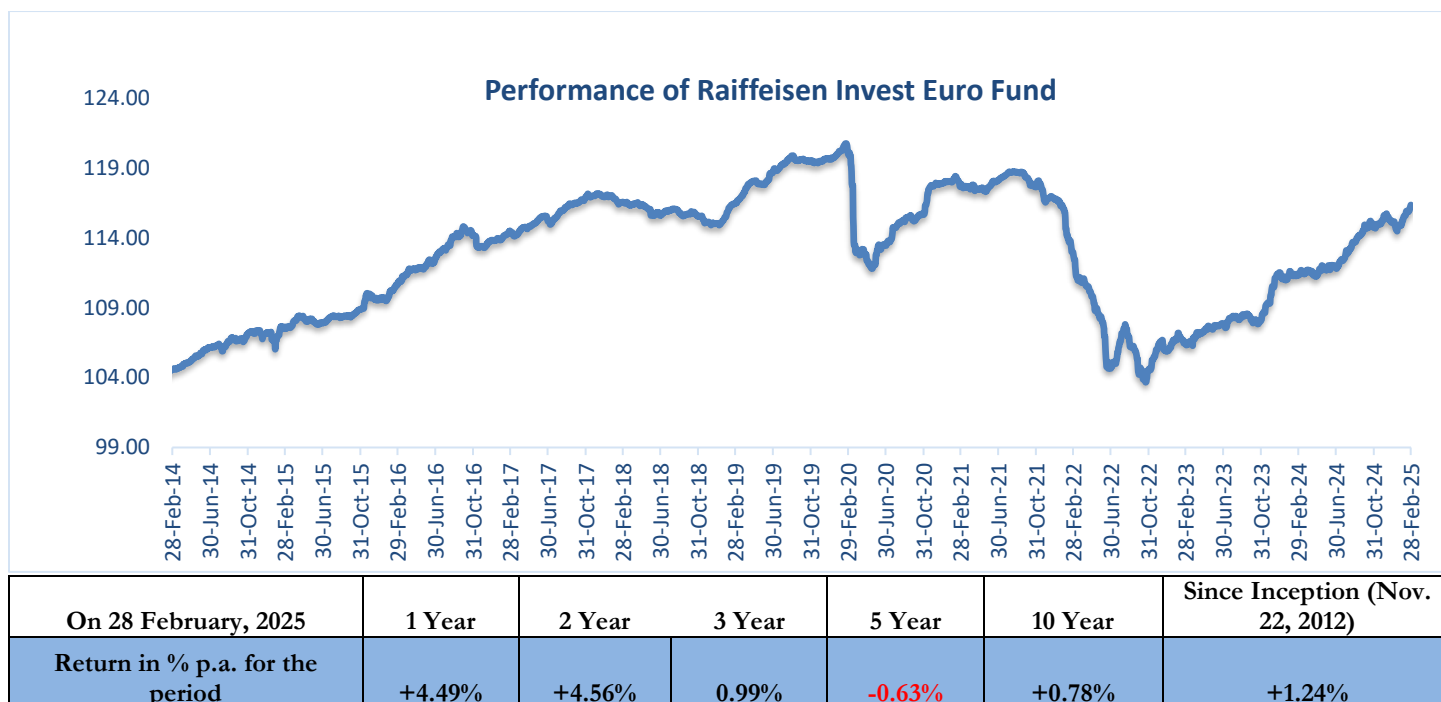

The fund may balance the exposure to different instruments depending on market conditions to achieve its long-term objectives. The assets of the fund invested in corporate bonds with investment-grade ratings and investment funds now stand at 50.8% of the assets. The liquidity held as cash and deposits has increased to 3.9% of total assets.

The net asset value of the fund stands at the level of EUR 40.5 million at the end of February 2025.

The performance of the fund in February 2025

The unit value increased by 0.96% during month of February, marking a very good monthly performance. Bond yields fell across the US, as investors allocated to less riskier assets, while European markets saw modest returns. The performance of corporate and government bonds had a positive impact on the investment portfolio of Raiffeisen Invest Euro fund, which posted gains throughout the month. The average yield of the investment portfolio was 3.41% for an average duration of 3.26 years on the 28th of February.

The net annual return was +4.49% on February 28, 2025.

Net return for each year for Euro fund

It should be noted that the rate of return varies depending on market conditions and the unit value may be volatile, so it is not static or always increasing, but may also fall because of changes in market conditions. Volatility is a natural part of investment funds, and its total elimination is impossible.

The investors of Raiffeisen Invest Euro fund and all funds managed by Raiffeisen Invest are advised to have the longest possible investment horizon to benefit from an optimal return on investment and thus in the medium or long term to be able to recover the negative effects, which are created in short-term.

We do encourage investors to maintain their investment by not changing their investment objective of staying in fund driven by the unusual situation created by market developments, because in this way they will not risk getting out of the fund at the wrong time for their investment.

Developments and information on the performance of financial markets during February

Euro zone inflation eased to 2.4% in February. This was lower than January's 2.5% reading, but higher than expected by economists polled by Reuters. So-called core inflation, which strips out energy, food, alcohol and tobacco costs, came in at 2.6% in February, also lower than January's print.

The consumer price index across the U.S. economy, accelerated a seasonally adjusted 0.5% for the month, putting the annual inflation rate at 3%. The annual rate was 0.1 percentage points higher than December. CPI rose 0.4% in the month, putting the 12-month inflation rate at 3.3%. The annual core rate also was up 0.1 percentage point from December.

Inflation perked up more than anticipated in January, providing further incentive for the Federal Reserve to hold the line on interest rates. Minutes from the January FOMC meeting indicated that policymakers want to see "further progress on inflation" before considering any further rate cuts.

The European Central Bank will most likely lower interest rates again by 25 bp in the March meeting, thus cutting rates for the sixth time since June. However, the cutting phase may be drawing to a close as inflation cools and the economy digests seismic shifts in geopolitics.

Events in Europe grabbed attention, including the German elections, where the Christian Democrats (CDU/CSU) led by Friedrich Merz claimed victory. Additionally, ongoing discussions about the war in Ukraine raised questions about defense spending across Europe, and the Trump administration's aggressive use of tariff threats also increased market uncertainty.

As investors allocated to less riskier assets, US Treasuries found favor, causing yields to drop (yields move inversely to prices). On the corporate bond front, market conditions were less favorable. Investors began pricing in more risk, causing corporate bond spreads (the difference in yields between corporate and government bonds) to widen across both investment-grade and high-yield markets. US Treasuries outperformed other global government bond markets. European government bond markets saw modest returns with 10-year German Bunds yielding 2.39%, Spanish 10-year government bonds 3.10%, and Italian 10-year government bonds 3.47%.
